

The Box Class

This is a simple class design problem. For this exercise we will design a class that models a box shape. The important properties of a box are its dimensions.

Create a Box class. Provide getters and setters for the Box's length, height, and width. In addition, create a method that will calculate and return the volume of the a box.

Test all of these out with a driver.